Brent Schmidt Makes Magic Happen for Rick Smith Jr. With Chauvet Professional

USA - School teachers have been a busy lot with traditional and online learning. As a result, Magic Gives Back, an organization that stages pro-bono magic shows at schools across the U.S. to raise money for education projects, has been frequently using CHAUVET Professional fixtures in their school-to-school performances.

Brent Schmidt created the compact and easily transportable lighting rig, which features a collection of Rogue and Ovation fixtures from CHAUVET Professional.

"Rick Smith Jr. approached me three years ago about designing, building and running the production for this show," said Schmidt, the owner of B Productions. "Since the shows often take place in schools, they are not your typical theatrical production. I've taken theatrical elements, magic show looks and rock concert effects from my other projects and blended them into a creation that's unique for Magic Gives Back."

"Some of the venues we work in have limited power accessibility, which runs," continued Schmidt. "On other occasions, we may not have a lift. I definitely could not pull all this off under these circumstances without crew: Rane, Sam, Anthony, Vince and Tommy. They are the real MVPs of the Chauvet fixtures being LED and compact are also extremely helpful challenges."

Working with show producer Drew Murray, Schmidt has four different Magic Gives Back, which will vary depending on the venue. On January 13th, he worked on a performance at the 1500-seat Mentor Schools FC Cleveland.

The Mentor rig consisted of four Rogue R1 Spot and four Rogue R1 W Ovation E-190WW ellipsoidal units. Also included in the rig was an CHAUVET DJ Intimidator, as well as 36 Freedom Par Quad IP and six 12 Core 3x3 panels. For atmospheric, there were five Geyer U Schmidt hung the Rogue and Intimidator moving fixtures from the rig used them for stage washing, specials and occasional audience light. The rig was also connected together to make a 6x31 panel.

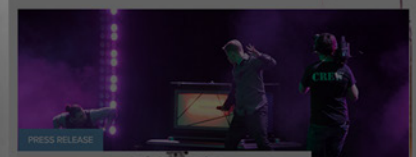

"Working with show producer Drew Murray, Schmidt has four different Magic Gives Back, which will vary depending on the venue. On 27th January, he used one of his larger concepts for a performance at the 1500-seat Mentor Schools FC Cleveland.

The Mentor rig consisted of four Rogue R1 Spot and four Rogue R1 W Ovation E-190WW ellipsoidal units. Also included in the rig was an associated collection of 10 Chauvet DJ Intimidators, as well as 36 Freedom Par Quad IP and four 12 Core 3x3 panels. For atmospheric, there were five Geyer units.

Schmidt hung the Rogue and Intimidator moving fixtures from the rig and second electric and used them for stage washing, specials and occasional audience lighting. The Core 3x3 panels were mounted on a 12' pole and arranged together to make a 6x31 panel on each side of the stage. "We used the panels for crowd strobing and blinding," said Schmidt. "They were invaluable for quick scene changes."

As an added means of engaging the audience, Schmidt positioned his lights throughout the venue. "The lighting made the crowd feel like they were part of the show with the dances and performances on stage," he said. "That's the big moment, when the music drops and our lights kicked in with the fog machine - and you're in the park stage!"
